The Mouse-Trap That
Mr. Emerson Wrote
About — I Think

Quoted
"Man walked into a drugstore and said he wanted some pills for what ailed him. The druggist came back with a box of pills and said, 'Here, take these.'"

Next day the man was back for more, and the druggist, surprised, asked, "How come?"

"Well, I swallowed it," said the man.
"Swallowed what?" asked the druggist.
"The box," replied the customer.
"Man, man," said the druggist, "just you wait 'til the lid comes off that box..."

I thought it was Emerson who said it — but my reference book on famous quotations fails to confirm — that if a man builds a better mouse-trap the world will beat a path to his door. I still think Emerson said it.

The point is, someone finally has built a better mouse-trap. As any old householder can tell you, the trouble with most traps is that the bait is wedged into a catch on top of the trip bar. Much of the time a smart mouse is able to steal the bait without springing the trap. Therefore the smart trap operator ties the bait fast to the trip bar. It gets the mouse—but the tying job is as tedious as unsnarlng a backslash in a casting line after dark.

But in this new trap I am talking about the bait is hooked under the trip bar instead of on top of it. The mouse which makes off with the bait on this outfit would have to bring a pair of pliers with him — I think.

It's a new idea. Still, I never heard of the manufacturer's name... and I have always been dubious about the truth of Emerson's famous saying, for it really is famous whether Emerson or someone else said it. Build a better mouse-trap and the chances are your idea will be swiped before the public finds out where you live, much less beats a path to your door.

This is a land of invention, but this also is the age of selling and distribution — and the familiar and readily-available article is the one the public buys regardless how many superior products wither in anonymous silence. Because the big-production item is cheap.

But the basic trouble with Emerson's quotation (if it is Emerson's) is that he picked the wrong illustration. I wouldn't want any stock in a mouse-trap manufacturing enterprise. Mouse-traps are sort of like office safes — all of them work, more or less, and most of them will last a man's life-time.

Don't ever get into a business which has no replacement orders. The only way you could make a dividend on Emerson's quotation would be for the country to expand enormously either its households or its mice. Maybe I haven't the right author, but I know what I am talking about.

And, still frustrated as to Mr. Emerson, I am going to throw away my old reference book and say if a new one doesn't give him credit for today's subject.

Maine Voters to Elect a Senator

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Maine puts its vote on the line today in a primary in which Sen. Margaret Chase Smith contends that Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) apparently planted the man opposing her.

That is the closest Mrs. Smith has come to openly accusing the Red-hunting Wisconsin senator of attempting to engineer her defeat in the Republican senatorial primary.

And it was her nearest approach to a direct attack on her competitor, Robert L. Jones. Jones is a McCarthy supporter. Mrs. Smith definitely is not. The contentions closed their campaigns last night with tandem television appearances from the same Portland studio.

They met head-on in a corridor audible to by-standers. Jones told reporters he did say "How do you do?"

Mrs. Smith has spoken of McCarthy in an earlier TV interview with commentator-Columbian Drew Pearson that was filmed several days ago in Washington. Jones followed through by saying Pearson was "brought in here to try and ruin me."

Local Station Preparing for Visiting Days

The University of Arkansas Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station here was ready today to put on its best research display of the season for visiting farm people from all parts of southwest Arkansas.

The 26th annual Family Visiting Day for white farm people is scheduled for Friday, June 25, with a special day for Negro farm families set for Saturday, June 26, according to Cecil M. Bittle, assistant director in charge of the Station.

Dr. James H. Hilton, president of Iowa State College, will be principal speaker at the Friday afternoon session. He will be introduced by Dean Lippert S. Ellis, of the University's College of Agriculture. The inspection tour of the experimental farm will get under way at 9:30 a. m. The first stop on latest research in cotton insect control will be in charge of Dr. Charles Lincoln, head of the college entomology department. Stop No. 2 will be a pasture wheat experiment with oats, wheat, barley, and rye. This work will be explained by Dr. R. D. Staten, of the agronomy department and Wheeler R. Perkins, Extension district agent.

Newest research fruits and vegetables will be displayed by Earl J. Allen, Extension horticulturist, and Dr. John L. Bowers, of the college horticulture department. Crop research on exhibit will include tomatoes, cucumbers, watermelons, peaches, okra, and snap beans. A special program for farm women will be held between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. on the Station Campus. It will include a demonstration in rice cookery by H. C. Stump, manager of the Arkansas Rice Promotion Association; insect and disease control of roses and other ornamentals by Gordon Barnes entomologist and Dr. Harlan E. Smith, Extension plant pathologist; and a craft demonstration in ball point painting by Mrs. John V. Keck, of the Hopewell Home Demonstration Club.

The same tour of the research plots will be available on Saturday. Principal speaker on the Saturday afternoon program will be Dr. L. A. Davis, president of Arkansas A. M. & N. College at Pine Bluff. A special youth program is scheduled for 11 a. m. Saturday for 4-H, NFA, and NHA members. The Friday program for farm women also will be repeated on Saturday. Visitors may purchase their lunch at the Station on both days.

Disbarment of Attorney Is Approved

By LEON HATCH
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today approved the disbarment of former Paragould City Attorney Horace W. Whitsett.

Whitsett was forbidden to practice law by Circuit Judge Guy Amsler of Little Rock about a year ago.

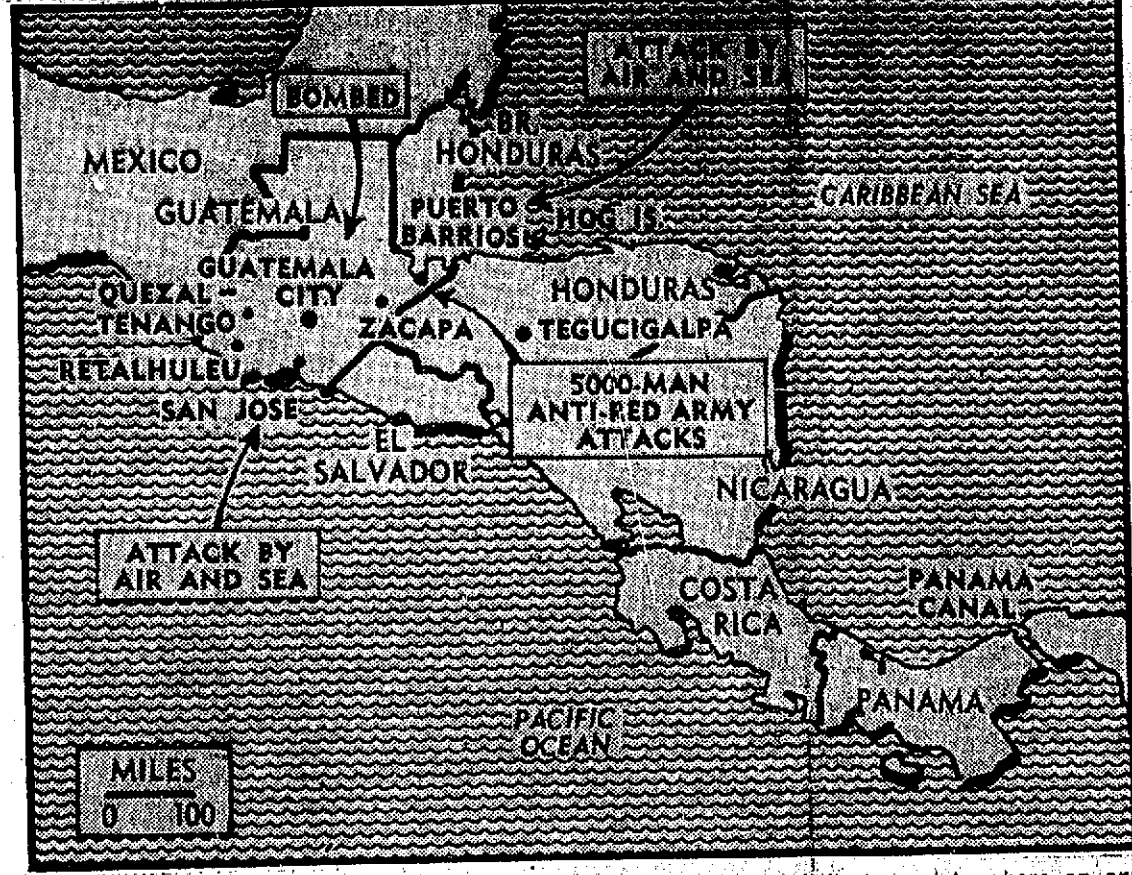

The action was taken on a complaint by the Bar Rules Committee of the Supreme Court, which regulates the practice of law in the state. After a lengthy hearing, Amsler upheld several allegations by the Rules Committee.

These included one that Whitsett falsely represented to relatives of a 71-year-old man, charged with raping a five-year-old girl, that he needed additional money above the agreed fee as a bribe to save the defendant from the electric chair.

At the time, the committee charged the prosecuting attorney already had agreed to accept the defendant's plea of guilty to a charge of assault to rape, which doesn't carry the death penalty. Whitsett, the committee charged, withheld this fact from his client and the latter's relatives.

Amsler presided at the disbarment trial in Greene Circuit Court on an exchange of circuits. In an unanimous opinion, the Supreme Court copied Amsler's findings in the case as its own and noted briefly that "the judgment... is in all things affirmed." The Supreme Court raised from $75 to $175 a fee allowed Bernard Whitestone, El Dorado lawyer, against George C. Travis, and others, for legal services. The opinion modified a Union Circuit Court judgment.

The Supreme Court refused to disturb a Sebastian County Court order depriving Robert W. Carlton of custody of his two minor children and awarding custody to his former wife, Mrs. Sally Kopisak. The court also affirmed Crawford Carlton had appealed. The court also affirmed Crawford Carlton's appeal in awarding $100 to 80 acres to Boyce Wafford and Jay Neal against the conflict of interest claims of D. L. Fontaine and others.

Facts Not Told at Hearing Mundt Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today senators could spend the next 20 years investigating the McCarthy-Army row, and still not get all the facts.

But he told reporters he believes the 36-day televised public hearings at which he presided "brought out the salient facts."

Mundt made the statement as he announced postponement of what he termed "consultative talks" to explore the points of agreement among the four Republicans and three Democrats who conducted the hearings.

Mundt had called a meeting of the group for this morning, but it proved inconvenient for several members to attend. He said he hoped they could get together late today or tomorrow and among other things sound out prospects for getting Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins to help write a "verdict" in the inquiry.

Jenkins told reporters he is ready to agree to take the job. "I will be available to do anything directed by the committee as long as it is necessary," he said. "I'm going to see the job through."

Jenkins' statement was in a separate interview at which, in reply to reporters' questions as to whether he might run for the Senate, he said some friends have "expressed doubts about the propriety" of efforts to induce him to run on the crest of publicity he received as counsel in the inquiry.

Jenkins said he has not yet made a decision, but "I'll know" within two weeks whether he will run. There has been some movement in Tennessee to run Jenkins, a Knoxville lawyer, on the Republican ticket.

Replying to reporters' questions, Jenkins also said he regrets he did not answer more fully when he said in a televised interview Sunday that if he does run for the Senate he would be happy to have McCarthy campaign for him.

He said he should have added, but didn't, that he also would be glad to have the support of Secretary of the Army Stevens and others on the Army side.

Jenkins expressed it in terms of "if I should make the campaign, which I doubt."

H. Sturte Hensel, assistant secretary of Defense, whom the subcommittee had dismissed as one of the principals and as a scheduled witness in the McCarthy hearings, demanded over the weekend that the subcommittee unanimously "dismiss the charges against Sen. McCarthy."

Mundt was asked what he thought the hearings subcommittee might do about Hensel's demand. "My guess is that we would not go into the matter," Mundt said. "Having dismissed Hensel as a principal with the concurrence and urgings of his counsel, it would be my feeling that the committee would not go into that matter."

The senator said he has "a whole list" of affidavits, including one from Hensel, that the writers want introduced in the official record of the hearings. He said he will submit them to the subcommittee at its next voting meeting.

Mundt said the "list" of affidavits includes one from Pvt. G. David Schine, the storm center of the hearings, and a half-dozen or so others. Harmony was noticeably absent at the first executive session Friday at which Mundt announced.

Purpose of the meeting is to draw for places on the ticket by various candidates and to consider an application of certain Negroes of the Clow, Minecreek Township community, for a voting precinct at Clow and other business.

Ike May Urge International Conference

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower probably will urge British Prime Minister Churchill to cooperate in setting up an international conference on anti-Communist defenses in Southeast Asia against communism when the two meet here next weekend.

Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden are due in Friday. Their talks with Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles will be informal and, aides indicate, as secret as possible.

The Indochina crisis is the No. 1 topic. Others include the organization of a European Defense community and atomic energy problems.

U. S. officials said that the American government is still urgently interested in getting a united front of Allied European and Asian nations set up to halt Communist expansion in the Indochina area. They think a conference would be useful to that end.

Until about two days ago authorities figured Britain would most likely go along on some move toward creation of a Southeast Asian alliance. That estimate was based on the official belief that Britain had decided the Geneva conference would fail to produce peace in Indochina.

But the British position has shifted. H. Sturte Hensel, assistant secretary of Defense, whom the subcommittee had dismissed as one of the principals and as a scheduled witness in the McCarthy hearings, demanded over the weekend that the subcommittee unanimously "dismiss the charges against Sen. McCarthy."

Mundt was asked what he thought the hearings subcommittee might do about Hensel's demand. "My guess is that we would not go into the matter," Mundt said. Chinese List 14 Americans Dead, Missing

GENEVA, (UP) — Red China told the United States today that 14 U.S. airmen and one American missionary among 83 Americans the State Department claims are being detained by the Reds, are either dead or presumed dead. Fifteen airmen were admitted to be in jail.

Chinese delegates, in their fourth meeting with American representatives at the Geneva Far Eastern conference, also handed over a statement on the status of most of the others.

They said 30 are in prison, 12 are unaccounted for. Two were claimed to have left Red China June 18. Additional information was asked on two others. Two were claimed to have voluntarily withdrawn requests for exit visas and one was claimed never to have been detained.

The United States has been attempting through contacts with Communist Chinese leaders in Geneva, to obtain the release of Americans either jailed or denied exit permits by the Red Peiping regime.

Earlier the United States listed 83 persons in these categories. The Communists reported the deaths during the course of the fourth meeting here between representatives of the two delegates to the Geneva Far Eastern conference.

Guatemala Is Under Martial Law; U.S. Tells Russia to Keep Out

UN Shifts Issue Western Group, Warning Follows

By BRUCE W. MUNN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — The anti-Communist invasion of Guatemala passed today from the United Nations Security Council to nations of the Western hemisphere with a sharp-spoken American warning to Russia to "stay out of this hemisphere."

Russia used its veto for the first time on a U.N. plan to refer the Guatemala question to the 21-nation organization of American states and drew a scathing denunciation from U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

Even Guatemala conceded the only hope of action was through the O.A.S., which at the recent meeting of North, Central and South American foreign ministers at Caracas, Venezuela, adopted a strong anti-Communist resolution over Guatemala's objections.

The O.A.S. prepared to investigate the revolt despite the rejection of the plan yesterday by Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsaraphin at the first Sunday meeting of the council since the June 25, 1954 session on the invasion of South Korea.

Lodge said the veto by Russia, "thousands and thousands and thousands of miles away" could lead only to the conclusion that "the Soviet union has got designs on the American hemisphere."

"I say to you, representative of the Soviet Union," he said, "stay out of this hemisphere and don't try to start your plans and your conspiracies over here."

French Wipe Out Reds on River Island

By LOUIS GUILBERT
HANOI, Indochina (UP) — Hundreds of French troops made an amphibious assault on Van Coc island in the Red river delta, west of Hanoi and wiped out an important Communist base for infiltrating the delta. The French high command announced today.

The assault began before dawn yesterday and fierce fighting continued today, authorities said. French union troops reported slaying 38 Reds and capturing 89.

Naval craft packed with infantry landed on the island at 4 a. m. and seized a number of villages where Red troops were known to be hiding. Tanks and artillery joined the infantrymen.

The high command said the troops moved cautiously toward the villages without encountering resistance.

At 5 p. m., the high command said, hundreds of screaming Communists rushed from underground hideouts dug beneath innocent-looking bamboo huts and began fighting the French units.

More Communists jumped into sampans on the mainland and paddled fast toward the island. French them.

Big Battle for Key Cities to Come Soon

By SAM SUMMERLIN
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman of Guatemala proclaimed martial law throughout his invaded country today as his Communist-backed government mobilized for a showdown battle with the Red Rebels.

Insurgent leaders claimed their forces were pushing ahead in a three-pronged drive aimed at cutting rail and road communications in the southern part of the country.

The martial law decree was announced "last night" after the government appeal for all private cars to be turned in for use in moving troops. Reports from Tegucigalpa said the decisive phase of the battle for that neighboring Central American nation will come within 48 hours.

Associated Press Correspondent Jack Rutledge, in Tegucigalpa, quoted a Guatemalan army official as saying no field action had been fought. They added, however, that a battle could not be far off.

The U.S. Embassy in Guatemala City announced it is making plans to evacuate wives and children of U.S. citizens. With a wave of U.S. feeling sweeping the city, the embassy reportedly received a message from the U.S. State Department that North Americans should leave the country.

Part of the rebel force was reported striking toward the American Highway near the Yacopan border, through the heavily forested hills. The force headed by a Guatemalan officer, peque, Honduras, toward the town of Jutiapa.

Another invading column reportedly was moving in from Mexico into Honduras, about 20 miles west of Puerto Barrios. Guatemala's chief, Carlos Castillo Armas, said the rebels were attacking toward the Yacopan border, through the heavily forested hills. The force headed by a Guatemalan officer, peque, Honduras, toward the town of Jutiapa.

Rebel sources said their plans also are dropping arms in western Guatemala. They are urging against the government's use of force.

President Arbenz reportedly taken personal charge of the strategy. It was speculated that taking over of private automobiles could mean he plans to attack the famous "Cacabana" army.

France rushed to send a Maine River during World War I. There was no immediate reaction to diplomatic developments in the United Nations and elsewhere on Guatemala's charge of aggression.

At an extraordinary session, the U.N. Security Council unanimously called for a cease-fire in Guatemala. The resolution proposed by France, also urged all U.N. members not to aid either side in the struggle.

The move came after the Soviet Union vetoed a U.S. proposal to turn the complaint over to the Organization of American States and demanded the council itself act on the case.

An American woman correspondent in the capital, Guatemala City, was quoted as saying the Communists were not making preparations to resist the army. She said low troops were seen on the streets of the capital city. The correspondent, Lewis, is representing the Daily Express in Guatemala.

McMath Jumps on Bills by McClellan

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Sid McMath yesterday said Sen. John McClellan surely would be defeated "if the people of Arkansas understood two giveaway bills he has supported."

The former governor spoke at a statewide meeting of supporters of his campaign to defeat Sen. McClellan for the Democratic nomination to the Senate.

The meeting was attended by McMath backers to whom letters were sent there was no prior public announcement.

McMath said one "giveaway" bill was the "tidelands" oil legislation. He said the other was a law passed during closing days of the last Congressional session.

That bill, he said, was passed to allow payment of a two billion dollar German bond issue. McMath said the bonds were purchased by private U. S. investors before World War two, with U. S. funds.

McMath called "McClellan 'co-sponsor' of the 'tidelands' bill. The law, for which the Senator voted, declared state ownership of off-shore oil lands as far out as 10 miles.

McMath said the "oil lobby" wanted it this way, but that Arkansas alone had lost by the measure. The state lost a conservatively estimated 232 million dollars, as its share of federal tax revenue which would have been realized if title had remained with the U. S. government.

McMath said that for some years past "you haven't had a vote in the U. S. Senate."

The former governor and candidate for senator referred to the frequent occasions on which his opponent, Sen. McClellan, and Sen. Fulbright vote on opposite sides.

"The votes cancel each other out," McMath said.

To no one's surprise, McMath indicated that he thought that nearly always the McClellan side was the wrong one.

A special youth revival will start Wednesday, June 23, at the First Pentecostal, Fourth and Ferguson Streets. Evangelists and musicians Gliden, Smith and Rogers, pictured above, will conduct services nightly at 7:45. They are from Bossier City, La. according to the Rev. H. P. Hudspeth, pastor.

New Record for Mile Set in Finland

TURKU, Finland (UP) — John Landy of Australia broke Roger Bannister's world record for the mile run today when he ran the distance in 3:58.

Landy, the 21-year-old agricultural student who travelled half way around the world to find better racing conditions, thus shaved 1.4 seconds off the mark set by Bannister at Oxford University, May 6. Bannister became the first man ever to break the four-minute barrier when he was clocked in 3:59.4.

Landy performed the feat in a meet held in this tiny Finnish hotbed of track, less than 100 miles from the Soviet Russian border.

In the course of his mile run, Landy also set a new world mark for the 1,500-meter distance, known as the "metric mile," when he was clocked in 3:41.8 at that point in the race.

All records must be formally approved by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. However, in view of the ideal conditions for the race, Finnish track authorities foresaw official acceptance when the feat is submitted for approval.

Last Remark Proves to Be Outstanding

BY GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON — Probably no comment or statement which Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) made during the long McCarthy-Army hearings evoked as much public response as did his two brief remarks the final day.

The hearings ended late Thursday, and several hundred telegrams and telephone calls had arrived by Friday noon virtually all complimented him on his remarks.

In the morning session, McClellan coldly laid the dispute in the lap of the Republican party.

And in the afternoon, he gave his opinion that the events leading up to the hearings were "deplorable and unpardonable."

"They will be recognized and long remembered as one of the most disgraceful episodes in the history of our government," he said.

McClellan's morning remarks were in reply to Sen. McCarthy's efforts to blame Democrats for the Army charges.

"Bwar in mind," he told Chairman Mundt (R-SD), "that everything that is under investigation here now occurred when the Democratic members were not on this committee. We were off of this committee in protest to a situation that obviously led to this tragic situation. I can do no more except to offer to assist."

McClellan referred to the fact that Democrats left the McCarthy committee to protest McCarthy's role right to hire and fire staff members and the practice of having one-man hearings.

"If you Republicans would consult with the Democrats a little more and take us into your confidence and welcome our help you will have a better administration and a better government," he said.

"You can always have the co-operation of this Democrat," he said. "In anything that is right, and certainly you can have it wholeheartedly to the full extent and limit of my energies and capabilities whenever the sole purpose and the primary purpose is to ferret out Communists or to expose Communist infiltration."

He told Mundt: "The best way to get co-operation, however, is to reciprocate."

Now that the hearings are ended, McClellan hopes to be able to devote to do is to make flying trips to Arkansas each week-end. Now, he said, he hopes to spend considerable time in the state and making only flying trips to Washington.

Texarkana May Get Spa Franchise

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — Texarkana stood ready today to take over Hot Springs' place in the Class C Cotton States League.

The franchise transfer appeared certain after a Elks Lodge decided last night not to put up $3,000 needed to keep the franchise in Hot Springs.

League officials voted yesterday to remain a six-team circuit and ordered Hot Springs to post the bond or lose the franchise to Texarkana Thursday, when Hot Springs is scheduled to open its next home series.

The emergency meeting, held at Greenville, Miss., was called at the request of Charles Williamson, Hot Springs owner, who had suggested the league end operations after the July 12 all-star game.

Williamson told the meeting that after he made the request the Elks Lodge approached him about the possibility of putting up part of the money to run the team.

Three Texarkana residents, O O Porterfield, Horace R. Milan and Newt Spivey, attended the meeting. They said they were told to "get the Hot Springs franchise, if at all possible."

The group said Texarkana, a city of approximately 50,000 persons, has a new park, Texarkana, a former member of the Cotton States League, was in the Class B Big State League last year and had a season's attendance of 116,000.

J. L. Honeycutt of Pine Bluff assured the other members of the league that Pine Bluff, which reportedly was on the verge of dropping out earlier, definitely would finish the season.

Murphy to Enact His Own Life

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How does a modest man enact his own amazing life on the screen?

Actor Audie Murphy is not sure he'll live through it, but he is undertaking to portray the soldier Audie Murphy in "To Hell and Back." The autobiography is being filmed with an expensive production by Murphy's home studio, Universal-International.

Murphy's record as a soldier in World War II is unparalleled. He won 23 decorations, including the big one the Medal of Honor. While he was killing 240 German soldiers, a mortar shell burst at his feet, he was perforated by an artillery shell blast and shot in the hip by a sniper's bullet.

The former sharecropper boy from Kingston, Tex., is modest about his war achievement. Director Jess Hibbs told me he and producer Aaron Rosenberg have met opposition on some points in the script.

"I think it's kind of silly to show me getting the medals at the end of the picture," Murphy reasoned. "Those who know I got the medal will understand. And for the others the events will speak for themselves."

Audie remarked that the rest of the script is shaping up well, but he'll take a stand on that matter. I asked him what would happen if the studio remained firm and put another actor in the role.

"Fortunately, that's in the mail print of my contract," he laughed. "Nobody else can play the role but me. I had to do it that way. Otherwise they would have had Tony Curtis in the part long ago."

Hibbs said that two thirds of the picture would be shot on location near Yakima, Wash., where the army will supply troops and full cooperation. The terrain approximates the settings of Sicily, Italy and France, where Murphy fought.

Kroger Food Tests Told in Collier's

Ever test the bite resistance of a jelly bean? Or the crumb potential of a cookie? Those are just two of the hundreds of thousands of quality-control tests carried on each year by the Kroger Food Foundation in Cincinnati says a picture feature article in the June 25 issue of Collier's magazine.

Products sold in Kroger stores go through an elaborate testing operation at the Food Foundation. More than 600,000 sample lots of food are tested each year in the Laboratories, the test kitchen, are by a taste panel. Two hundred pounds of tin cans, alone, are emptied in tests each day.

Modern food manufacturers and distributors, the article explains, make certain food is pure enough to eat, tasty enough to enjoy, and stable enough to travel well and live well and live a long life on the pantry shelf.

In addition to the cookie-snapper and the jelly-bean-buster, the article describes such intriguing gadgets as a "jamspreeder" which measures the thickness of jam so it will not drip on Junior's shirt and a "macaroni-meter" which checks the diameter and wall-thickness of spaghetti and macaroni to insure uniform cooking time.

Brando to Do Another Film 'Desiree'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Marlon Brando says he is doing another film role because of a vow to his dying mother.

The actor has reported to 20th Century-Fox to portray the young Napoleon in the film version of the best seller "Desiree." He has returned in glory to the studio where his name was mud only a few months ago.

When he failed to report for shooting of "The Egyptian," the studio replaced him with Edmund Purdom. Then it sued Brando for two million dollars. The suit was canceled when Brando agreed to appear in "Desiree" opposite Jean Simmons.

Brando told me the deal came about because of his mother. He explained:

"She was very ill when the whole thing happened. She was very upset by the innuendo and sniping at me after I left the picture. She made me promise to patch up the trouble. So I agreed to do 'Desiree'."

"She's dead now. But the deal is still on." He gave no indication that he was any happier with his current one than he was with "The Egyptian." I talked to him as two makeup women were fitting a wig on his head. He gazed placidly in the mirror as they curled the phony locks into a replica of Napoleon's hair.

While making "The Wild One," he had told me he planned to work in only one more picture. This could be it.

"I'd like to play," he said. "Maybe I'll direct one. I've always wanted to see what it's like on the other end of the stick. After that I don't know what I'll do."

Is he interested in television?

"Nah! Are you?" I asked him about his treatment of Napoleon, whom he much resembled in the wig. He wore a Napoleonic vest over his inevitable T-shirt, but all the buttons were buttoned. He won't stick his hand inside, he declared.

"It's too much of a cliché," he said. "The minute I stuck my hand in my best tie, the audience would start to snicker. Besides, this deals with earlier years when he may not have had the habit."

Police Probing Death of Heir

CHICAGO (AP) Authorities today intensified their investigation of the mysterious death of the 20-year-old heir to a million dollars after being told the young man relived his will recently to make his fiancée principal beneficiary and had expressed doubt he would live to come into his own inheritance.

Montgomery Thorne was found dead in his Studio apartment Saturday. Coroner Walter E. McCarron said there were four needle marks on his arms but no evidence he was a user of narcotics.

The coroner ordered an analysis of vital organs.

He said he also has sent investigators to Birmingham, Mich., to interview the 25-year-old daughter of a prominent Birmingham family. He said the girl, an art the subcommittee had agreed informally "to try to agree" for unanimity on at least some findings.

Right afterwards Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat and spokesman for his minority party colleagues, publicly demanded a "house cleaning" among staff members before the group undertakes any new investigations. Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who as regular subcommittee chairman appointed its staff, retorted that the Democratic demand was "clever, dishonest and extremely dangerous to the country."

A possible new point of controversy—or at least a resurgence of an old one in the many-sided dispute—was tossed in the subcommittee's lap yesterday when H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense, demanded the group unanimously "dismiss the charges against me . . . with a severe rebuke to Sen. McCarthy."

Hensel started out as one of the principals accused by McCarthy and his aides of trying to use Pvt. G. David Schine as a "hostage" to sidetrack a subcommittee probe of alleged Reds in the Army. The charges named Secretary of the Army Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams, with Hensel listed as mastermind of the accusations brought by the Army side against McCarthy.

The Army accused McCarthy.

Ruling Saves Leo Cash as Homers Build

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Warren Giles' embargo on the $100 home run bonus came just in time to save Leo Durocher a lot of money.

Yesterday two Giant pinch hitters, Bobby Hoffman and Duff Rhodes, tied a record by hitting pinch homers in the same inning of New York's 4-1 victory over St. Louis. Wes Westrum also homered in the sixth inning and Al Dark hit one earlier.

If Giles hadn't sounded a warning, Leo probably still would be handing out $100 bills as he did last week to Bill Taylor and Hank Thompson.

The Giant homers yesterday routed the Yankees and hung a defeat on the Yankees' lead. But the New York Yankees' lead was sliced to one half game by Brooklyn's double victory.

The Dodgers again fell back on relief pitching as they knocked off Chicago twice, 6-4 and 6-3. Clem Labine bailed out the first game and Bob Milliken and Ben Wade held the fort in the second after Billy Loes left.

For the first time since Sept. 6, 1953, Pittsburgh actually won a double-header, downing Milwaukee 2-1 in 10 innings when Lew Burdette hit Curt Robert with a pitched ball with the bases loaded. Gair Allie's three-run homer gave the Pirates the second game, 6-3 over Bob Buhl.

Cincinnati bumped off Philadelphia twice 4-3 and 5-8 chasing their old teammate, Herm Wehmeier. The Redlegs scored nine runs in the first inning of the second game.

Cleveland liked its American League lead to four games by beating their old Boston spartanates around the head 3-1 and 9-2 while New York and Chicago were dividing two. Bobby Feller's five-hitter and Art Houtteman's 10-hitter both had home run help from Al Smith.

The Yankees managed 20 hits, including home runs by Bill Skowron, Gil McDougald, Mickey Vernon and Joe Collins in triumphing Chicago 16-8 in the first game. Then Bob Kegan squared matters for the White Sox 7-3, becoming the first American League pitcher to win 10 games this year.

The second game was held to eight innings by darkness. Sherm Lollar's two-run homer in the seventh was the big blow.

Baltimore's losing streak stretched to eight straight when Washington's Connie Marrero and Dean Stone pitched the Senators to a double victory, 7-1 and 7-2.

A Philadelphia-at-Detroit double header was rained out.

Stanford Defends College Golf Title

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Stanford University, with three-fourths of its 1953 team on hand, began defense of its national collegiate golf championship today on a soggy Brae Burn Country Club course.

A field of 147 players teed off in the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds in the 57th annual NCAA tournament.

The team title will be determined on the basis of 36 holes of qualifying play. Wednesday, the 64 qualifiers begin match play to determine the individual list.

Despite a steady rain, the 6,940-yard, par 72 course offered little trouble to several of the individual favorites yesterday as an east team defeated a west squad, 6-4 to 5-2, in 12 best ball matches.

Earl Moller, the defending individual champion from Oklahoma A&M had a 74 but teamed with Joe Ferguson of North Texas State to defeat Eddie Merriam, Louisiana State, and Bob Benning, Purdue, 2 and 1.

North Texas State, the 1954 NAIA champion, Oklahoma A&M, Purdue and Louisiana State are expected to offer Stanford the strongest competition.

Al Dark Regains Lead in Poll

CHICAGO (AP)—Alvin Dark of the New York Giants regained the lead for the starting National League shortstop job as voting continued today in the annual all star baseball poll.

The 31-year-old Dark went ahead of Milwaukee's Johnny Logan by 738 votes in the latest tabulation at the Chicago Tribune headquarters for the balloting.

Dark had 56,712 votes to Logan's 35,976.

The voting to decide the starting American and National league lineups except pitchers for the annual interleague game at Cleveland July 13 began June 11 and continues until July 3.

Stan Musial continued to be the poll's highest individual vote getter. The St. Louis Cardinals outfielder has 51,704 votes.

NEW YORK (AP)—That prize pickle of the tennis courts—Art Larsen has taken pen in hand and stirred up our Australian friends to the point where anything might happen and probably will. Official protests promise to be the least of it. Tempers are becoming ragged.

Larsen, who is playing in the Wimbledon Championships starting today, set the pot boiling when he wrote for a recent issue of "World Tennis" an article which he meant to be humorous entitled "I Played Australia." A copy seems to have reached Australia, and, judging by the contents of a cable we have received, the Australians do not think Larsen is funny.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Assn. at Melbourne has protested that Art's literary flight of fancy has "damaged Australian prestige." The president of that body, Harry Pitt, has complained to the U. S. Association that our former national champion's charges are "entirely incorrect" and "fantastic." As it happens, he's right on both counts.

Referring to Larsen's tour of Australia a few years ago—a tour which the Aussies swore at the time would never be repeated—Pitt has this to say:

"Larsen was treated with every consideration and efforts were made to soothe him. Throughout the tour the authorities had been too lenient with Larsen and the crowd was very irritated with his behavior. The criticism was mild and much less than he deserved."

One is likely to wonder what in the world our tennis hero could have written to bring down such honest wrath, and by the greatest good luck there is a copy of the offending article at hand. It's dramatic if we ever saw the explosive. Examples:

"On the day of the finals (Larsen writes) there was a 70-mile-an-hour wind. When I stepped on the court to begin, a huge box came flying through the air and knocked me down. I had to hit every ball, twice because the wind kept throwing the ball back at me."

One can readily see, we feel, why the Aussies do not think Larsen is funny. Why they are sore is not quite so clear. Again he recalls a high spot of the tour, which apparently had many:

"Then something happened—I don't remember what and they began to boo me for no reason. They did it so brutally and consistently that I finally blew my cork. I picked up my rackets and stalked off the court amidst a shower of beer bottles and a Metropolitan Opera chorus of boos."

From the information we have, the Aussies are particularly upset over this passage and with some reason. Our own suspicion is that Art is exaggerating Australian beer comes in quart bottles, which are very unwise for throwing purposes, and are not sold at tennis matches.

Winner to Get Chance at Sadler

NEW YORK (AP)—Sandy Saddler's next title opponent probably will emerge from Friday's Madison Square Garden bout between featherweights Lulu Perez of Brooklyn and Percy Bassett of Philadelphia. The New York State Athletic Commission will recognize the winner as the outstanding challenger.

Perez whipped Davey Gallardo and knocked out Willie Pep and Mickey Mars in his three 1954 starts. Bassett did fine as long as he stuck to feathers, knocking out three 126-pounders in Europe, but lost to lightweight Cisco Andrade and Orlando Zuleta.

It's a network radio (ABC) and television (NBC) show.

The Friday show closes the regular season at the Garden although there will be periodic Wednesday shows during the summer.

Collum Waited 5 Years for Win

By RAY SEPHERS
LITTLE ROCK, (AP) It took five long years of playing second fiddle for Paul Collum to win the Arkansas Amateur golf championship, but the persistent master from El Dorado finally picked up the title.

Collum, a short, chunky oil salesman, turned his relentless game on a close personal friend, Gene Keeney of Texarkana, yesterday to win his first state championship, 6 and 5.

Ignoring the 95-degree heat the grind of seven rounds over the 6,425 yard Little Rock Country Club course, Collum methodically laid his drive down the middle and exhibited an unerring putter.

When the pressure was strong, the champion made the shots that counted. Never was he in serious trouble throughout the first 13 of the 36-hole finals, and four times he sang puts from 10 to 30 feet out to build up his lead.

The cedar waxwing is named for the small beads of red wax on the tips of some of its wingfeathers. The purpose of the wax is not known.

anyway and put down the crates of crates I was carrying. While I was taking his things from the basket, I noticed that those soft, womanish eyes of his held an odd expression. At last he's working himself up to talk I thought, and I was right.

I said, "If you'd get six of those three-for-a-quarter apples, I would have a figure out each time how much one costs and how much that and 23 adds up to."

He stood there, working his jaws and lips. Finally he stuck a thumb of his huge right hand against the gray sweater, about where he hugged out most. "Rasler, me. Greece me. Milo me." His voice was soft and light as most girls like his eyes.

It was the longest speech he had made to me and he was worn out after it. The sweat fountained down into the turtle neck of his sweater. I realize now that it wasn't only the effort of talking English. He was waiting for me to laugh, which I did, as I've always been sorry since. That's what happened every time Milo told anybody that he was a wrestler. Even the idea of that little fat man in wrestling fights was funny.

I could see that I had hurt his feelings so I said, "I wrestle some, too. What say you and me work out together sometime?"

His eagerness was pathetic. His lips and jaw worked again while he tried to find words. "You mean? Is true?"

"Sure. There's a mat at the Y gym. I work out there nights."

"This night? Milo me, work rest'n. Fi' to ni'. Ni' too late?"

The way he nipped his eses and cut off the ends of some words made it hard to understand him, but I caught on. "No, nine isn't too late" I said. I thought I was being pretty nice to the poor grease ball.

"Ni'. Y. Milo be."

"Okay" I said. "I have a new book on wrestling. We'll try some holds."

"No rassie um book, Milo teach. Me there." He held out his hand

I had a good grip for a kid of 20. Sometimes I'd try it out on some one to see him wince and maybe I did on Milo. If so, he didn't notice it. I learned how it must feel to lose a hand at the wrist. There was a sharp crunching of bones and then a numbness.

You won't believe me, but after he'd gone I tried to pick up an orange in that hand and I couldn't hold it. The manager of the produce department bawled me out for spending so much time with one customer and because I'd only charged 32 cents for the four three for-a-quarter apples, but I hardly paid him any mind, I was so busy wondering if I'd got myself in for more than I expected.

Commission Still Face the Congress

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — While still fresh in office last year President Eisenhower set up so many commissions to study and find answers for the problems facing him that Critics jokingly called it "government by commission."

He is now learning that when a commission gets all through recommending, he still has to deal with Congress, and Congress can do as it pleases.

Last January a 17-man commission — headed by Clarence Randall, steel manufacturer — wound up a six-month study by making a list of recommendations on foreign economic policy.

Eisenhower had taken office at a time when it was clear this country was going to have to cut down on the amount of the aid it was shoveling out to other countries. Yet, once the aid was shut off, they'd have to fill the gap somehow to survive, and one of the ways was in more trade with this country. The Randall commission was set up to look for answers.

The perfect commission would be one in which all the members approached their problem with an open mind and wound up with an answer so obvious that all the members were in complete agreement.

The Randall commission didn't come close to the ideal group. Individual members had strong, perhaps lifelong, opinions on foreign trade which apparently didn't change.

Among other things, the commission majority recommended that the reciprocal trade program be extended for another three years and some tariffs on foreign imports be lowered sharply over that period.

Under the Reciprocal Trade Act

the President can lower tariffs on certain foreign goods coming here if a foreign country lowers its tariffs on certain American goods sent there.

Two of Eisenhower's own Republicans on the Randall commission, key men in Congress, attacked the commission's report on specific details and termed the entire report "vague," indefinite and unsatisfactory."

These two were Rep. Daniel A. Reed of New York and Rep. Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania. Reed is chairman and Simpson is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which gets first crack at all tariff legislation.

Another Republican commission member — Sen. Eugene Millikin of Colorado, who as chairman of the Finance Committee is Reed's counterpart in the Senate put in a long letter that was far more dissent than agreement.

Reed and Simpson took the position that tariff lowering, as recommended by the Randall commission, would hurt American business because of the competition of imported foreign goods and cause unemployment.

Eisenhower, following the majority recommendation, asked Congress to extend the Reciprocal Trade Act three years and let him cut tariffs 5 per cent in each of those three years.

But this request landed in the lap of the Reed-Simpson committee. Eisenhower backed up. He agreed to accept a one-year extension, without added authority to cut tariffs. He said he'd work for more improvements in foreign trade next year. The House passed the one-year extension. The Senate is expected to do so this week.

There is nothing unusual about this year-to-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act. The practice has been followed regularly in recent years in the fact of much strong opposition in Congress against cutting tariffs.

In 1930, although more than 1,000 economists protested, President Hoover signed into law the Hawley-Smoot bill passed by a Republican-controlled Congress. It set
